THE PAINS OF MEMORY.

[EXTRACT FROM MR. MERRY'S POEM ON THE PAINS OF MEMORY.]

Down in yon glade, beside that glassy pool,
There stands, and long has stood, the village school;
Hark! the gay murm'rings of the sportive train,
Freed from restraint that gambol o'er the plain;
List their shrill voices, and their bursts of glee,
Will future years recal their extacy?
Perchance some one, hereafter, of the band,
From the brown summit of that jetting land,
Shall eye the well-known spot, the self same scene,
And the thin spire that peeps those groves between;
Shall mark the peasant plodding as before,
And the trim house-wife at the cottage door;
Shall hear the pausing bell's pathetic toll,
Borne on the gale, announce the parting soul—
Of some old friend, who to his childhood kind,
Prepar'd the kite and stream'd it to the wind;
Some busy dame, for cakes and custards known,
Who gave him credit when his pence were gone;
Some truant plough-boy, who, neglecting toil,
Join'd him to seize the tempting orchard's spoil;
Or in despite of peril, spread the snare,
As thro' the thicket pass'd the nightly hare;
Then shall he think on all the woes of life,
His thankless children, or his faithless wife,
His fortune wasted, or his wishes crost,
His tender brother, sister, parents lost,
Till ev'ry object sinking into shade,
He sigh, and call oblivion to his aid.

The buxom lass who late secure from harm,
With gay importance bustled thro' the farm;
Tended her dairy at the break of dawn,
Or fed her circling poultry on the lawn;
O'er the wash'd floor the cleanly sand let fall,
And brush'd the unseemly cobweb from the wall;
Who in the hay-time met the lusty throng,
And with her share of labour join'd her song,
To the faint reapers bore the humming ale,
Or jok'd the thresher leaning on his flail;—
By vain ambition led at length to town,
In quest of fortune, and suppos'd renown,
If there, the victim of some worthless rake,
She chance its sickly pleasures to partake,
Mix'd with the pamper'd crowds, whose looks disclaim
The smile of virtue and the blush of shame;
Will she not oft regret the chearful day,
When sport and freedom hail'd the approach of May,
And many a rural pair beguil'd the hour,
With evening dance beneath the moon-light bow'r.
Or to her sad fate left, condemn'd to rove
The lawless paths of desultory love;
Will not her tortur'd bosom throb the more,
Whene'er she thinks on what she was before,
And finds recoiling from the insidious joy
A secret canker ev'ry rose destroy.
While all that memory's sorcery can dispense
Shall add new pangs to loss of innocence.

FOR THE GAZETTE OF THE UNITED STATES.

Mr. FENNO,

WE often see in the papers accounts of the enormous expences attending elections in England, and our indignation is justly excited at reading the recitals. While we execrate the bribery and corruption, which is there so shamelessly practised; we consign the corruptors to infamy, but the corrupted, the people who thus barter their rights and privileges for a mess of pottage generally escape censure. There is one circumstance in this business which wants explanation; people are puzzled to account for the impunity attending this base traffic for the suffrages of the people, when they consider that no country in the world has severer laws against bribery and corruption at elections, than Great-Britain. Let us turn our attention to what passes under our own experience, and see whether the difficulty cannot be solved.

In England the modes adopted for evading the laws are infinitely various, and generally successful. The Candidates on such occasions are almost every where present, and a perpetual smile or grin enlivens their countenances; they are "hail fellow well met" with every man woman and child, and are the best natured creatures in the world till election is over—they pay off small debts, subscribe to every charitable institution, repair churches, give organs, replenish libraries, distribute books, pictures, &c. &c. Mean time their agents are busy and alert, in providing entertainments, giving balls, and distributing ribbons, feathers, rattles, corals for children, favors to the Farmers wives and daughters, and prizes to the youth who exhibit their prowess and activity at the public games. A profusion of liquors is distributed, feasts are given in all the public houses, and all at free cost. In this way Mr. Nobody, cajoles Mr. Every body; for after all this generosity, charity and public spirit, it would be little short of hellish ingratitude not to give Mr. Somebody your vote—Now, if nothing like this ever has happened, or can happen in this independent commonwealth, then we may felicitate ourselves that there are none among us so base as to assume the character of corruptors, or so servile as to be corrupted. But if there are of both descriptions, then we can easily solve the difficulty relative to eluding the laws, without crossing the Atlantic.

E.

From the FARMER'S WEEKLY MUSEUM.

Turn ye, Turn ye.

SO bellowed a methodist preacher from the north scaffold of neighbor Hobnail's barn last Sunday. Hobnail had anticipated his command, and actually "turned" his beeves and bulls from their stalls, to admit this biped brute whose wind allowed him to out bellow, the stoutest ox on the farm.

But dont laugh, gentle race of mortals, at the stupidity of my neighbor, for I saw a large crowd of ye, at this same barn, gaping to the hollow sounds of this hay mow teacher, and if you are not grossly belied things of equal emptiness have long engrossed much valuable time.

There is a Lion twelve miles hence to be seen, and who would not spend a day, and give ninepence, to see the Lion? Dobbin is taken from the plough, Silas leaves the hay, and Jemima her flax, and all post off to see this monstrous "wild vermin." After a thousand silly questions at his cage, this sensible company return to their spinning and farming. Now let us calculate the cost of this journey.

Father and Silas one day	8s.
Mother and Jemima might have earned at home	4s.
Old mare and Dobbin	4s.
Cash expended for sight & drink	5s.
Cows got into the corn because all were from home, and destroyed to the value	1l. 4s.
Pigs rooted up half an acre of potatoes	1l. 10.
Brood of goslins destroyed by Hawks	4	6
	£. 3	19 6

Rare sport to see the Lion, and yet those who form a crowd about his cage, are the "restless ones" in society, who growl at the tax which supports the useful parson, or instructs the rising generation. I can almost wish them Daniels fate without his protection. My good neighbors from such things, turn ye, and let lions range the African forest, and be it yours to range your own farms, and whether a methodist rants, a lion growls, or a juggler performs, save your time, reputation and money, for purposes that create the good citizen and the happy life. Believe me, that by "turning" once from such things, you turn better property into your possessions than is gained by a Carver speculation, and more contentment into your dwelling, than you would acquire seeking after wild beasts all your lives.

THE HERMIT

From the AUGUSTA CHRONICLE.

Mr. SMITH,

I HEAR Mr. Somebody has given you the trouble of publishing a sneer against the proposition for a convention, &c. &c.

And I have heard, that his flippancy has given such offence to some of your subscribers, that they threaten to withdraw their names.

But is not this too precipitate? Such withdrawing is a declaration for laying under restraint the press, which should be free. And if a people take the trouble of forging their own chains, do they not invade the province of Imprudence? Whenever a people commit this trespass, they are sure to pay smart-money, one day or other.

This is not meant in excuse for this Somebody's attempt. Of that, reports are not very much in its favor.

The proposition was thought to be very inoffensive. Neither was it founded on absurdities. The impossibility of persuading all men to think alike, was not attempted. The principal object was, by frequent collision, to wear off that roughness, which has often wounded, where no wound should be given: And to change into the friendly warmth of brotherly love, that coldness which often freezes up the milk of human kindness, so honorable in man, and so essential in a Christian.

Whether endeavors to promote such dispositions; or attempts, like that of Somebody, to prevent them, be most worthy of public approbation, the public will easily determine.

Although a free press should be preferred; yet there is a great difference between free and licentious.

Every master of a press is supposed to possess the powers of a Roman tribune. When pieces are calculated to create discord; to bear false witness against a neighbor; to corrupt youth, and the unwary, or fond, generally, to loosen moral obligations.—in all such cases the master's veto may be happily applied.

But, at any rate, they would do well to consider that the publication of such a piece, may and probably will, do an injury, for which no recompence can ever be made.

This, though, is thrown out only as a hint; and not obtruded as advice.

I am an old man, tottering over the grave. But until I fall into it, I wish for quietness and peace.

As I wish all men well, I sometimes offer a bit of advice. If folly pass it by, unregarded; I am sorry for their mistake.—It may be fatal. But if the wise in their own conceit, endeavor to torture it on the rack of their ridicule, I breathe a passing sigh, and wish for that time, when a mischief to communities shall not be found among the children of MEN.

From a London paper.

LIBERTY OF THE SUBJECT.

It is really surprising that people should bawl so for liberty when there is so much in this kingdom. It is well known that all ranks of people possess liberties which every thinking man must seriously wish did not exist; and that many of our liberties trench upon those of other people. Several of our great men have the liberty to run in debt with every man who is fool enough to give him credit, the liberty to refuse payment as long as they please, and the liberty to plead privilege to protect their sacred persons from the pursuit of law. But then, on the other hand, some tradesmen have the liberty of charging so high for their goods, that if they are paid once in seven years, they will still be gainers by the bargain, whilst others, more conscientious, have the liberty to be ruined, and have their names inserted in the gazette, introduced by a whereas.

Many of our clergy have the liberty of enjoying sinecures, and pluralities; whilst their lean curates have the liberty of doing all the duty, and maintaining their families as well as they can, with forty or fifty pounds a year.

Several persons who never saw a sword drawn, or a shot fired (except, perhaps, in a duel, or an imaginary affront, in defence of the reputation of a strumpet, or on a quarrel about cards or dice) have the liberty to start up at once as military commanders, and raise regiments. For which purpose they have had the liberty to employ crimps—to trepan the unwary, to seize men who had no other crime but poverty, drag them from their families, and send them to the army or to the navy, and to depopulate the fields and the looms for the good of the service.

Ladies of easy virtue (or rather of no virtue at all) take the liberty of crouding all public places, elbowing women of reputation, and putting modesty out of countenance. Of glorying in their infamy; and when they grow old themselves and part their trade, of writing their memoirs for the edification of youth.

Many more instances of liberty might be produced; but those few may suffice to enable us to say, that England is a Land of Liberty.

FRESH IMPORTS FROM IRELAND.

A novel, of considerable celebrity, on the other side of the channel, begins in the following true Hibernian style: "It was one of those delightful evenings when the sun was shining in his meridian splendor, and illuminating with nature's most dazzling tints all the projected improvements of Lord Milford's captivating place, the palladian bridge which he hath planned, the fine hanging beech woods which he intendeth to plant!

HAGUE, June 7.

The representatives of the province of Utrecht have resolved, that for the future no ecclesiastical society shall enjoy greater privileges than another; that all salaries to professors of divinity, preachers or other ministers of the church which are paid from the public treasuries, shall cease at the expiration of four months; that all benefices out of which such payments are made shall be declared the property of the province, as the founders and first possessors had very different views from those of the present; that all churches, meeting houses, schools, that are not supported by private funds, shall be considered as the property of the province, that the churches however shall be left open to the reformed congregations.

LONDON, July 7.

All the letters from Italy are full of bitter complaints against the conduct of Buonaparte. They charge him with a wanton insolence in tone and manners, with an insatiable avidity, and the utmost duplicity: the latter is indeed sufficiently proved by the striking contrast between his fraternal proclamations and vexatious proceedings. The people, exasperated by the pillage of the churches, the exorbitant contributions imposed on them, and the imprisonment of the priests, nobles; and, in short, of all the most distinguished persons in the country, on pretence of keeping them as hostages, are every where preparing violent measures. What has already come to pass at Milan, Pavia, Novia, &c. is only a prelude of what may happen in future. Our Anglo-French prints, which have with so much complacency celebrated the modgration of the new Vandals, may probably soon be brought to recant.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer has happily prevailed on the bank to advance £. 200,000, in order to pay off one quarter's arrear of the Civil List. Mr. Pitt was obliged to make three journies to the bank before he persuaded them to make this advance. The loan is given, we suppose, on the security of the growing produce of the Consolidated Fund. This may be truly called a drop in the ocean of national necessities; but so far as it goes, it is not very reputable in the directors of the bank to do; since it is an advance of money without the authority of Parliament; and may pave the way for further deviations of the same kind. A Minister has only to prevail upon monied men to assist him with funds, to make all the cheques of our Constituution, waste paper.

PHILADELPHIA,

TUESDAY EVENING, SEPTEMBER 27, 1796.

The President's farewell address to his countrymen is another gracious testimony of his disinterested love of country.

The sentiments it contains and the principles it inculcates must come home to the feelings of every genuine and patriotic American. Such advice from such a citizen, under the present circumstances, must make the most durable impression; it will form the Americans true political creed; it will be the Book of Oracles to his successors. While they pursue the line there traced, America will be happy and prosperous; if they deviate from it, every deviation will be marked with political calamity. Experience has tested, under the administration of the Federal Government, the wisdom and policy of those principles which are recommended by the President, and which formed the basis of his administration; America under it has flourished, has been at peace and has been truly happy. May his successor be inspired with similar sentiments and inherit his political virtues!

However we must regret and deeply regret the retirement of this truly great man, we cannot but rejoice that the moment for retirement is singularly auspicious, and that he retires with unfaded glories. If calamities should again surround us, Americans, will know where to seek the Saviour of his Country.

To the ELECTORS of the City of Philadelphia.

GENTLEMEN,

Having attended at a meeting at Mr. Hoffman's ſchool, Cherry-ſtreet, as well as at Mr. Little's ſchool-houſe on Friday evening laſt, for the purpoſe of nominating ſuitable characters to be ſubmitted to our fellow citizens for their ſuffrage at the enſuing election; it appears but reaſonable and proper, that the buſineſs, ſo far as it hath been acted upon, ſhould be laid before the citizens, generally, for their information, that they may thereby have time and an opportunity of conſidering the characters of the ſeveral propoſed candidates, and therefrom ſelect thoſe men who are moſt eſteemed for their wiſdom, virtue, and political knowledge in government affairs; as well as the propriety of ſelecting Counſellors and Common Council men, for making ordinances and bye laws to regulate the police of this city.

At this laſt meeting (at Mr. Little's ſchool) a printed ticket, or liſt of names, was offered to the gentlemen preſent, from which it was propoſed (at a ſubſequent meeting to be called for the purpoſe) to ſelect a ticket to be ſupported by all the gentlemen then preſent, at the enſuing election, for the following offices, viz.

Governor.
A Member of Congreſs.
A Senator.
Six Members of Aſſembly.
Twelve ſelect Counſellors.
Twenty Common Councilmen.

The propriety of the characters contained in this liſt, to fill ſome of the important ſtations intended for them, are ſo ſelf-evident that they need no comment: it is only wiſhed that a choice had been ſubmitted to the meeting, as well in that of Governor and Member of Congreſs, as in the ſeveral ſtations of leſs importance; for though we have heard of no oppoſition to the Governor elect, as Governor, we have heard of other candidates for Congreſs; and could wiſh that JONATHAN B. SMITH be taken up for that important ſtation, Mr. Smith is a native of this ſtate—received his education (which was liberal) amongſt us—was bred a merchant in the counting-houſe of his father in this city—ſerved as an officer in the militia, with great reputation, during the trying ſeaſons of our glorious revolution of '76, '77, and '78—Cannot be ſuppoſed under the influence of foreign nations, either from family connections, kingly patronage of his friends or family—or from receiving his education in Europe. Theſe conſiderations ſhould have their due weight with all independent American electors.

Subjoined you have a copy of the printed liſt circulated at Mr. Little's ſchool room, nothing doubting but that from ſo reſpectable a collection of the names of our fellow-citizens, a ſafe ticket may be formed, with Mr. Jonathan B. Smith as your Repreſentative in Congreſs.

This recommendation is ſubmitted to mature conſideration of the electors generally, as well as the gentlemen who compoſed the above recited meetings, by an ELECTOR.

BY THIS DAY's MAIL.

NORFOLK, Sept. 19.

Died, this morning, at the houſe of his Britannic Majeſty's Conſul, in this borough, Capt. CHARLES PLOWDEN SLANEY, of his Majeſty's 21ſt regt. of Light Dragoons, and brother to Wm. Slaney, Eſq. of Park Place, Shropſhire, England.

BALTIMORE, September 24.

The following extract of a letter from a houſe in Naſſau, New-Providence, dated Auguſt 22, to another in this town, has been put into our hands with a requeſt that it ſhould be publiſhed.

"GENTLEMEN,

"WE lately received a letter from Urgin, in the iſland of Cuba, reſpecting the ſeizure of a veſſel ſuppoſed to be an American, and the murder of the crew—a copy of which, as we received it, you have encloſed. We have alſo received the following information from a captain of a Spaniſh veſſel now in this port, belonging to Urgin: That ſome time in April laſt, a ſchooner of the following deſcription touched there in diſtreſs: A new veſſel, about 40 tons, white bottom, black bends, yellow ſides, carried a ſtanding fore topſail; after procuring her neceſſary ſupplies, ſhe ſailed from thence either for the Cape or Aux-Cayes, with a cargo of dry goods, oil and flour, two barrels of dollars, and another of half joes. There were ſeven French gentleman paſſengers, a mulatto woman, an Indian man, and two negroes. A French ſchooner privateer was then lying in that port, and followed her out, and it was reported the crew of the privateer deſtroyed all hands on board, took out the ſpecie and valuable goods, then ſunk the veſſel, and with their booty proceeded back to Urgin, where they diſpoſed of it, and from thence went to the Havanna.

"P. S. The captain of the Spaniſh veſſel ſays, that he underſtood the ſchooner belonged to Baltimore."

The ſubjoined is the letter above alluded to.

SIR,

I WISH to let you know, that a French privateer has brought into this port (Urgin) a copper bottomed ſchooner, bound to Jamaica, with a cargo valued at twenty-five thouſand dollars, beſides one barrel of dollars and another of half joes—the people were murdered on board, and the cargo ſold for nine thouſand dollars and divided among the ſmugglers. There were trunks on board the ſchooner with the following advertiſement paſted in them: "William Craun makes and ſells trunks and portmanteaux of all kinds, after the Engliſh and French modes, No. 71, Cheſnut ſtreet, Philadelphia." The cards on the trunks may lead to the owner of the cargo, the whole of which is now in Urgin, and might be recovered, if immediately demanded.

The letters from which the above public information is taken, are in the hands of the printers of the Federal Gazette, and may be ſeen by thoſe concerned.

Married, laſt evening, Mr. S. Moale to Miſs Ann Howard, daughter of S. H. Howard, Eſq. of Annapolis.

It is with ſatisfaction we are informed of the arrival of the books for the library company of Baltimore, and that the quantity is by no means ſmall—alſo that they will ſoon be in readineſs for the uſe of ſubſcribers. It is ſincerely wiſhed our citizens will apply for ſhares, and "endeavor to promote as an object of primary importance, inſtitutions for the general diffuſion of knowledge."

NEW-YORK, September 24.

By captain Johnſon, in the ſhip Nancy, 42 days from Liſbon, we have advice of the arrival of the Brazil fleet there, with property to an immenſe value.

We have been favoured with the following extract of a letter, from an American in Liſbon, to his brother in this city, dated

"LISBON, Auguſt 11, 1796.

"Ever ſince I have been here, there has been the greateſt appearance of a rupture between Spain and England. It hes at length taken place: Spain has ſhut its ports againſt England, and it was reported yeſterday, and currently believed, that a part of the Spaniſh fleet had ſailed in conjunction with the French—their deſtination unknown.

"The French have been uniformly ſucceſsful in Italy; and the preſent appearance is, that the Pope will be dethroned, or will be forced to make peace with the French upon their own terms. Indeed, they have already levied heavy contributions upon ſeveral of his provinces, and made a demand upon them of 20,000,000 florins. On the Rhine, they are equally ſucceſsful. If this campaign ends as ſucceſsfully as it has begun, the French will have no enemy in Europe that will be able to contend with them.

"The Portugueſe are in expectation of a viſit from them through the territories of Spain. In conſequence, the greateſt exertions are making to raiſe an army of 50,000 men, to march to their frontiers, by the firſt of October."

Extract of a letter from a mercantile houſe in Liſbon, to his friend in this city, dated the 11th of Auguſt.

"The political ſituation of Portugal becomes very critical, ſince it is no longer to be doubted, that WAR will immediately take place been England and Spain. A Spaniſh ſquadron ſailed on the 4th inſtant from Cadiz, in company with the French veſſels of war which have been ſo long there, under the command of admiral Richery. It is ſaid alſo, that the French have demanded a paſſage through Spain, for 50,000 troops, nominally deſtined againſt Gibraltar."

MR. M'LEAN,

Be pleaſed to inſert the following in your Gazette, and oblige a PLEBEIAN.

A Searcher after Truth, in this age of Phariſaical deluſion, enjoys with great delight, even the breathings of philanthropy; but viewing as he does the very marrow thereof in the reſignation and addreſs of our beloved PRESIDENT, he is anxious that it may be retained: and to this end he thinks it worthy the patronage, yea, to be the patron of the the human race: and that they may ever have it in their eye, it would be well (next to the Bible) a copy thereof was framed and placed over the mantle-piece of every family, as not only a true but uſeful picture, and by way of embelliſhment, the Declaration of Independence, and the Conſtitution of the United States, ought to be its ſupporters. May abler champions come forward with their eulogies. The motive of the preſent writer is two fold; firſt, to bear grateful teſtimony to the inſtrument, in God's hand, that hath directed the public affairs of America to a happy iſſue in the moſt trying times, ſuch as ſhe may never again have to encounter; therefore the approbation of his conſtituents muſt add balm to the reſidue of his life, notwithſtanding I have not a doubt he is perfectly happy in the poſſeſſion of an approving conſcience: but, ſecondly, that his ſucceſſor may be ſtimulated to emulation, in order to obtain a like reward.

NORWICH, September 22.

We are informed that two perſons have been apprehended upon ſuſpicion of having committed the murder and robbery in Newfield, as mentioned in the laſt packet. They live adjacent to the place where it was committed, and were apprehended as they were purſuing their route to New-York. It is ſaid that as ſoon as their purſuers had entered the room in which they were, and made known to them what they were after, they immediately diſcharged each their piſtols, wounded one man, and endeavored to effect their eſcape; they are ſecured in Fairfield jail.

WHITESTOWN, September 14.

A Correſpondent ſays,

Much has been ſaid of the barbarity, of the inhumanity, and of the want of confidence in Indian or ſavage tribes. Let us look into it—a few days ſince an Indian was taken for having committed murder, and bro't before a civilized tribunal, accompanied by mere than 20 chiefs of his nation; his examination was candid, and circumſtances appeared ſufficient to order a commitment. No objection was offered on the part of the Indians, except that the criminal ſhould be neither bound nor tied; and they would be his ſponſers. This was complied with, and the Indian remained all night, rambling the ſtreets, without any one to guard him. In the morning, however he was at his poſt, and went to jail ſinging merrily.—Truſt me, if you can find an inſtance of the kind in the civilized world.

Another Correſpondent adds,

View them in the diſtribution of their annuities, they receive each one, from the ſuckling to the ſage, an equal ſhare, and they go away contented with their proportion. All above 14 ſpends his money as he pleaſes—that of thoſe below, goes to the parents. No civilized nation practices theſe indubitable rights.

QUEBEC, September 8.

On Tueſday laſt, about four o'clock in the afternoon, a dreadful fire broke out, in a ſtable belonging to the Honorable Thomas Dunn, in Saint Louis ſtreet, which ſeemed for ſome time to threaten deſtruction to the greater part of the town. The wind blowing freſh from the weſt, inſtantly communicated the flames to the houſe of the hon. Chief juſtice Monk, and to that adjoining on the eaſt ſide. While theſe were burning with great violence, and it was feared would communicate the flames to the adjacent houſes on both ſides of the ſtreet; the fire was obſerved to have caught in the convent of the Recolet's, at the lower end of the ſtreet, at leaſt two hundred yards from where it began. In a few minutes the roof and ſpire of the Church fell down, and the whole convent was in a blaze. At that moment it ſeemed very doubtful whether the Caſtle, or even the lower town could be ſaved; but the wind ſhifting a little to the northward, carried the flames up Carrier ſtreet, facing the Chateau garden, where the fire continued to rage, burning down all before it, until it reached the corner of the back-ſtreet, which leads up towards Mount Carmel, where at laſt it ſtopped. The houſe of H. W. Ryland Eſq. oppoſite ſide of ſaid ſtreet, eſcaped unhurt. Thirteen or fourteen houſes in all, are entirely burned down—among which are, two belonging to Chief Juſtice Monk, three to Berthelot Dartigny Eſq. and two to Mrs. Cugnet.

During the conflagration, the roofs of many others houſes alſo catched fire, which were ſaved by timely aſſiſtance, particularly that of Thomas Ainſlie Eſq. facing the Parade, the houſe of Aſſembly, and ſeveral houſes in the lower town.

It is impoſſible at preſent, to form an eſtimate of the damage ſuſtained, on this diſtreſſing occaſion, in houſes and other property; nor have we been able to learn, with certainty, how the fire originated; though it appears probable that it was cauſed by ſome boys at play, who in amuſing themſelves with gun-powder, had ſet fire to the hay in the ſtable, of which there was unfortunately a very large quantity.

N. B. To favour those who may take a quantity of Tickets, the prize of 40,000 dollars will be the LAST drawn ticket, and the 30,000 the LAST but ONE:

And approved notes, securing payment in either money or prizes, in ten days after drawing, will be received for any number not less than 30 tickets.

This Lottery will afford an elegant specimen of the private buildings to be erected in the City of Washington—Two beautiful designs are already selected for the entire fronts on two of the public squares; from these drawings it is proposed to erect two centre and four corner buildings, as soon as possible after this lottery is sold, and to convey them, when complete, to the fortunate adventurers, in the manner described in the scheme for the Hotel Lottery. A nett deduction of five per cent. will be made to defray the necessary expenses of printing, &c. and the surplus will be made a part of the fund intended for the National University, to be erected within the city of Washington.

The Drawing will commence as soon as the tickets are sold off.---The money prizes will be payable in thirty days after it is finished; and any prizes for which fortunate numbers are not produced within twelve months after the drawing is closed, are to be considered as given towards the fund for the University; it being determined to settle the whole business in a year from the ending of the drawing, and to take up the bonds given as security.

The real securities given for the payment of the Prizes, are held by the President and two Directors of the Bank of Columbia, and are valued at more than half the amount of the lottery.

The twenty four gentlemen who by appointment of the late Commissioners assisted in the management of the Hotel Lottery are requested to undertake this arduous task a second time on behalf of the public; a sufficient number of these having kindly accepted, it is hoped that the friends to a National University and the other federal objects may continue to favor the design.

By accounts received from the different parts of the Continent as well as from Europe, where the tickets have been sent for sale, the public are assured that the drawing will speedily commence, and that the care and caution unavoidably necessary to insure a safe disposal of the tickets, has rendered the short suspension indispensable.

SAMUEL BLODGET.

☞ Tickets may be had at the Bank of Columbia; of James West & Co. Baltimore; of Peter Gilman, Boston of John Hopkins, Richmond; and of Richard Wells Cooper's Ferry. eo
